Great Task For The World's Universal Peace
Is Begun In Washington Today.

CABLES FROM LATIN REPUBLICS

General Approval Of The Plan Which Was Started Many Years Ago By The Meeting Of American Republics--Carnegie Gave The Hall.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., May 11.—To the many memorable events of the past year or two which have emphasized in a formal, but none the less real, way the development of closer relations of friendship and commerce between the United States and her sister republics of the new world, must be added one other, the laying of the cornerstone for the office building of the Bureau of American Republics with solemn ceremonies this afternoon. This is the building which has been designated as the Pan-American peace palace, and toward the cost of which Andrew Carnegie contributed three-quarters of a million dollars.

The cornerstone laying was made notable by the presence of the president of the United States and many of his cabinet, by the representatives of the South and Central American governments, by the supreme court, by the senate and house of representatives and a large proportion of Washington's population.

Great attention was paid to the care and comfort of the thousands who were accorded an opportunity to witness the exercises and to listen to the address of President Roosevelt. The central location made the scene of the ceremonies within easy access of all. Flags and bunting were everywhere, and the colors of the various American republics were profusely displayed. Stand after stand was provided, and high above all the other things of place was the president's box, which was large enough to accommodate the diplomatic representatives of the South and Central American countries.

Palm and growing plants were there, and the faint touch of the new green of the trees shading off into the flower green of the park made an inspiring picture. To this and the flags of the various nations and the bright scarlet uniforms of the Marine band and the picture is complete.

President Roosevelt, accompanied by Secretary Root and Director John Barrett, of the Bureau of American Republics, arrived comparatively early. When the president came into view of the immense audience a roar of kindly welcome greeted him. Immediately after the arrival of the president, the numerous other dignitaries who were to figure prominently in the ceremonies put in an appearance.

The address of President Roosevelt was, of course, the chief feature of the ceremonies. Cardinal Gibbons delivered the invocation and there was a cordial greeting from Andrew Carnegie, Secretary of State Root made an address, specially endorsed messages of congratulation were read from the presidents of all the Latin-American republics, and brief speeches were made by Senator Naceno, the Brazilian ambassador; Senator Calvo, minister of Costa Rica; Senator Cruz, minister of Chile; and Senator Goley, chargé d'affaires of the Mexican embassy.

In the cornerstone was placed a hermetically sealed box. This contained among other things copies of the Washington newspaper, a copy of the official Journal of the Bureau of American Republics, an engraving and autograph of President Roosevelt, autographs of the presidents of the Latin-American republics and of their diplomatic representatives in Washington, and a number of other articles.

The building of the Bureau of American Republics will be among the costliest and most structures in the national capital. It will house the offices and museum of the Bureau of American Republics, an institution which was founded seventeen years ago, at the first Pan-American conference held in Washington in the winter of 1889-1890, and presided over by James G. Blaine. The original object, as then announced, was that of making the American republics better acquainted with each other and of exchanging information about their respective resources and trade.

It never, however, had the complete support and interest of the United States, or of her sister nations, until Secretary of State Root made his memorable visit in 1904 to South America. The third Pan-American congress, assembled in Rio Janeiro in that year, passed strong resolutions in favor of reorganizing the bureau, and outlined the plan to make it a world-recognized institution for the promotion of both commerce and unity. The new house of the bureau will be completed some time next year. Its cost will be approximately $1,000,000, of which Andrew Carnegie contributed $750,000 and the several American republics about $250,000. The old Van Ness park, which was acquired some time ago for the purpose, will afford almost five acres of ground for the building and its surroundings, and it will have a frontage of about a square on the White lot on one side and an equal frontage on Potomac park on the other. The building will be entirely of Georgia marble, from the Marble Hill quarries, one of the richest in the state.

From President J. Figueroa Alcantara of the Argentine Republic:
"The event so auspiciously celebrated in Washington, is the erection of a monument to the international solidarity of the states of the new world. The Argentine republic on this occasion sends greetings to the United States of America and to all the nations represented in the bureau of the American republics, and best wishes for the happiness of President Roosevelt and the presidents of all the sister republics.

From Minister of Foreign Relations Pinilla of Bolivia:
"The president directs me to inform you that as he cannot be present at the laying of the cornerstone of the new building of the bureau, he desires to express the gratification with which he takes part in that great event which represents the sincere union of the American republics."

From President Penna of Brazil:
"Brazil rejoices at the laying of the cornerstone of the new seat of the union of the American republics in Washington; she gives to the generous donor, Mr. Andrew Carnegie, her sincere thanks, and full confidence in the future of that union sends the assurances of her ancient and unalterable attachment to the great republic of the north, which offers it such noble hospitality."

From Minister of Foreign Relations Puga of Chile:
"The president of the republic says: 'The progress of Latin-America is assured in following the example of the great republic created by George Washington.'"

From acting president Encules de Angola of Colombia:
"I send my cordial greetings to the governing board of the international bureau of American republics on the occasion of the historic ceremonies to take place on May 11th instant, when the cornerstone of the building which will house it shall be laid. This monument very fittingly erected on the land of George Washington's birth, shall stand for the fraternal and permanent union of all the American republics. The people and the favorite of Colombia send through me on this solemn occasion the expression of their gratitude to His Excellency the President of the U. S., to the eminent statesman, Elihu Root, to the distinguished and generous philanthropist, Andrew Carnegie, and to the staunch Americanist, John Barrett, for their efforts and co-operation in the erection of this Temple of American Union."

From President Viquez of Costa Rica:
"The erection of the building of the American Republics, which by the nature of the international institution which it represents, and the maintenance of Mr. Carnegie, equalizes the Temple of Peace at The Hague, is a further important step toward the utilization of the happily existing fraternal relations which must bind more closely the nations on the continent of Columbia."

From acting secretary of state Garcia Yrujo of Cuba:
"The occasion of the laying of the cornerstone of the new building of the international bureau of the American republics, the provisional government of the republic of Cuba has directed me to express to the governing board of the institution on behalf of the people of Cuba his gratification at this new bond between the republics of America, which will contribute to the furtherance of the cordial solidarity of the continent."

From President Cuevas of the Dominican Republic:
"The same ideal of liberty and right should be the cornerstone of the international union of the American republics. He who united and harmonized in America, is a true American."

From President Estrada of Guatemala:
"I am greatly pleased to send you, on behalf of the people and the government of Guatemala, as well as personally, the expressions of cordiality and sincere congratulations on the occasion of the laying of the cornerstone of the building of the American republics, which represents the consolidation of the fraternal relations of the American family."

From Minister, secretary of foreign relations of Mexico:
"The president of Mexico sincerely wishes that the ceremony of the laying of the cornerstone of the building of the international bureau of the American republics be—as the bureau is—symbolical of the hope that an era of unalterable peace shall be the characteristic features of all the countries in our continent."

From President Zelaya of Nicaragua:
"My sincere and enthusiastic congratulations to the international bureau of the American republics on this solemn occasion of the laying of the cornerstone of the building of the American republics, which Mr. Carnegie has most nobly and beautifully contributed. I doubt not that this work will be a powerful and efficacious aid in of-

Hempton is 55 years of age.

WAS BADLY BURNED; DIES AS A RESULT

John N. Naumer Dies Near Oshkosh
from Pneumonia—Peculiar Accident.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Oshkosh, Wis., May 11.—While counting a roll of bills John Nicholas Naumer of the town of Oshkosh was badly burned and his burns developed into pneumonia and pleurisy which resulted in his death. The fatal accident was a peculiar one. Two weeks ago he retired to his room early in the evening and started to count a number of bills which he carried on his person. Unable to see the denomination of the bills in the twilight, he lighted a small lamp on a stand near the bed. In a few minutes he felt a warm sensation on his back and discovered his clothing was on fire. He tried to reach the door but fell back onto the bed, the bedding taking fire. Relatives broke into the room, rushed him and stripped the clothing from his body. It required quite a struggle to put the fire out, and about seventy-five dollars in bills were destroyed and about seventy dollars were burned partially, but this will be redeemed by the treasury department. Mr. Naumer lived just outside of the city of Oshkosh.

CROPS NOT ROTTING; RAINS WERE NEEDED

Prof. R. A. Moore of the State University Says Conditions Are Most Favorable for This.

"We haven't had too much rain for the crops," declared Prof. R. A. Moore, head of the agronomy department at the university today. "It is all talk that the crops are rotting in the ground. This rain is only making the crops grow."

"I think perhaps 75 per cent of the cereal grains in Wisconsin are saved and there will be seedling for several days yet. But it will be fully ten days before any corn planting is started. I cannot see how the ground would be so wet causing the crops to rot. I think the crop is well advanced and surely the outlook is much better than last year at this time."

Conditions in State Good

Prof. Moore has just returned from a trip in northern Wisconsin and says the conditions everywhere indicate good prospects for big crops this year. The ground is in splendid condition and the frost went out of the ground early.

The United States government, through its department of agriculture, has distributed seeds this spring to those who requested them. The government seeds are always closely watched in their results, and it must be said, warmly criticized if they do not bear superior varieties. It is considered by some people that these seeds from the government may be far better than any others in one section of the country or in one kind of soil, while they may happen to fall into conditions unfavorable to their best growth in other places. And although Janesville is in one of the most fertile and bounteous of spots, it may happen that some particular seeds are not at their best in its soil. The same will hold true of any portion of the country.

Should Not Be Discouraged

"Farmers should not be discouraged over weather conditions," said Prof. Moore. "Considerable rain is needed. On the whole the crops are in an unusually firm state. As soon as low seeds there may be too much water, but on the high spots may be not enough. Certainly the farmers will not have to seed under the present conditions."

The few rainy days have brought many farmers to the cities. About all they can do is shopping now and get things in order for getting the crops in at a much later on. The grass is reported by Secretary of Agriculture J. M. Tamm to be nearly two weeks in advance and he says but little of the winter grains or grasses were killed during the winter.

The new school law is creating a little excitement anyway. It seems queer that citizens will blame teachers, county superintendents or the sheriff for making reports which the law requires of them, and which the failure to do so from them is from five to twenty-five dollars. It is a good thing for the child that the state is taking enough interest in him to see to it that while he is between the ages of 7 and 14 years he can have at least six months of school. Of course sickness is excusable.

Miss Minnie Edwards was the guest of the Misses Laura and Eda Everson recently.

MAD MONARCH WHO NEVER WORE A CROWN.

Berlin, Germany.—King Otto of Bavaria this week attained his sixtieth birthday anniversary and Munich and other Bavarian cities displayed hunting in honor of the occasion and indulged in other forms of celebration. The photograph shown above is the last one taken of him, over thirty-seven years ago, when King Otto was a dashing youth of 22 years. King Otto in his early days showed considerable strength of character and power of control, but his dissipation, coupled with the faint of insanity on his father's side of the house, brought about his ruin, and in a few years after the Franco-German war broke out he lost all desire to communicate with his fellow men and steadily declined until he was put under private care as an insane man. In 1886 he would have succeeded to the throne as actual ruler had it not been for the state of his mind. As it is, however, he has been kind of Bavaria since 1886 and is looked upon as such by the people, although he never appears or is seen by anyone save his attendant. He was never crowned, and his uncle, Ludwig was appointed regent of the kingdom.

Soon afterward Otto was removed to the mountain palace of Furstentum, and there he still spends his weary years in hopeless lunacy. He is always waited upon with all the ceremony proper to his lofty rank, but his occupations are pitiful to see. A victim to sleeplessness, he often spends his nights in talking to himself or slapping in a voice that is said to be really beautiful, for the love of music is in his very blood.

PROTECTING SHADE TREES.

Work of Commissioners Appointed For That Purpose.

The cities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania are by statute now enabled to appoint shade tree commissions to take care of the shade trees on their streets. They can not only remove trees and assess the cost on the property benefited. They trim trees, protect them from injury, clean out decayed trunks and fill the holes with cement and wage war against the insect pests. Municipal Engineering describes the methods of work of the shade tree commission of East Orange, N. J., and shows what can be done.

In the trimming of trees great care is taken to cut off all limbs close to and even with the trunk. All scars are painted with a coat of thick coal tar. All trees on a street are pruned to a uniform height, and as far as possible that height is made ten feet, to clear all street lights.

The campaign against the insects infesting shade trees forms one of the chief tasks of the commission. The control of the injurious insects not only preserves the foliage of the trees for the season, but maintains their health and vitality. What can be done by persistent work in this line is shown by the results with the woolly maple scale (Pseudococcus aceris), which attacks the sugar maple. Other pests are the tussock moths, attacking the American elm and Linden, the white maple scale, attacking the white maple, the elm leaf beetle, the spring elm caterpillar, the bagworm and the fall webworm. The idea constantly borne in mind is to destroy the insects in as early a stage as possible, to minimize both the amount of work required in treatment and the injury done to the trees.

Gossip of People and Events Gathered in Washington

Senator Delivers Gift to Chinaman

WASHINGTON.—Senator W. J. Stone the other day journeyed out to the Providence hospital, near here, where, after long search, he located the cot of a Chinaman to whom the senator presented a pocket watch.

Stone had brought from Manila, Mrs. Stone's gift, and the pocket was a remembrance to Mrs. Maw from a brother. The gift was intrusted to Mrs. Stone at Manila, who promised that it should reach the proper hands in Washington.

Senator and Mrs. Stone were in Manila last fall. During their stay the Chinaman served as their particular attendant, and was so zealous in his efforts to please that the Missouri senator and his wife came to like him very much. When the American party started upon their return to the United States their Chinaman confided the fact that he had a brother in Washington, and wished, as the greatest favor possible to bestow that a gift be taken to him.

Ah Maw is probably the best known Chinaman in Washington. He is permitted to reside in this country by special act of congress. He entered the service of Admiral Dewey when, as commodore, Dewey commanded the American fleet in the Orient. Ah Maw was on board when the United States Squadron captured Manila. As a mark of respect to Admiral Dewey congress passed a law exempting Ah Maw from the exclusion laws.

Senator Stone first undertook, last New Year's day, to fulfill his mission of presenting the remembrance from the brother in Manila. Upon that day the Missouri senator thought to pay a call of respect upon the admiral and transmit the pocket, also. Upon reaching the Dewey residence he found all in confusion. The heavy lace curtains in the parlor had caught fire, threatening the destruction of the house and menacing the safety of women guests who were present. Ah Maw rushed into the parlor, tore down the curtains, extinguished the fire, saved the house and possibly saved lives. But he was badly, dangerously burned. He was taken to the hospital, and the commission intrusted to Senator Stone could not be carried out until a few days ago.

God to Be Restored to Nation's Coins

THE motto "In God We Trust" will be restored to the gold coins from which it was removed by President Roosevelt's orders. The house committee on coinage, weights and measures has reported a bill providing for restoration of the motto and its permanent retention. Indications are that it will pass both houses. President Roosevelt will not veto any measure of this kind, and has so told several of his callers.

Representative James, who introduced one of the bills to restore the motto, said hundreds of letters were still coming in protesting against the abolishment of the motto.

Immediately after the new gold pieces of the Saint Gaudens design were received from the Philadelphia mint early in November last year, the discovery was made that the motto "In God We Trust" had been omitted.

The responsibility for the omission was placed at the door of President Roosevelt, for only through an executive order can a change be made in designs for coins. This responsibility the president readily assumed, but, when adverse criticism began to come from all quarters of the country and religious and patriotic societies took up the matter, he decided to issue a statement setting forth his reasons for the action.

In this statement the president said there was no warrant of law for the inscription. Also he said that his own feeling in the matter was due to his "very firm conviction that to put such a motto on coins, or to use it in any kindred manner, not only does no good, but does positive harm, and is in effect irreverence which, coming dangerously close to sacrilege."

The president was firm that he would not order the motto to be replaced unless directed to do so by congress.

The president's statement failed to stem the tide of adverse criticism, and when congress convened numerous bills and resolutions were introduced and proposed to make it unlawful to issue coins without the inscription.

Tom and Tabby Hit by Cruel Cat Law

REST-DISTURBING feline music of the midnight back fence variety will be unknown in Washington, says District Commissioner MacFarland, when congress enacts into law a bill he has had prepared.

Mr. MacFarland is president of the board of commissioners of the district and is preparing to submit to his two colleagues his bill for their approval. It exercises the taxing power to exterminate the cats of the national capital. The midnight Thomas cats are to be taxed $5 per year and the anti-social tabby cats are to be taxed $10. Cats to escape the clutches of the panderator must wear tags, and it is distinctly provided in the bill that the payment of tax does not permit any cat to go upon private property other than that occupied by its owner. If the author and friends of the bill have devised a means of collecting non-taxpaying cats it is kept secret. It is rumored that a fence-sealing brigade, armed with ladders and butterfly nets, will be turned loose to gather in the tax Dodgers.

"The crusade against cats is being led by Mr. MacFarland because of the disturbed state of mind caused him while on route home at night by thoughtless, indiscriminating cats."

It is not thought that serious protest will be entered against the proposed law on constitutional grounds that it is class legislation and is aimed at the poor cats of the backyard variety, while the cats of the well-to-do families will be safe from prosecution, because of the protection of a home.

Congressman Has Plan to Help Farmers

REPRESENTATIVE SCOTT of Kansas, chairman of the house committee on agriculture, has conceived a novel plan which, he believes, would enable the farmers of the country to produce better and far larger crops than heretofore.

Mr. Scott's proposition involves the establishment of 100 experimental farms, of one acre each, in every county in a group of four western agricultural states for the purpose of giving the farmers a practical demonstration of the best methods of growing different crops. It is proposed that the lands for this purpose should be provided by the farmers themselves and that they shall do the work of cultivation under the direction of the experts of the department of agriculture. No additional appropriation from congress will be required to test Mr. Scott's plan. It is explained, as the agricultural department has the regular number of experts to carry it out.

Mr. Scott asserts that enough money is being wasted by the department in sending out farm bulletins and other government documents to carry out his idea. He says that much valuable information has been given by the experts in these publications, but their contents are so little understood by the farmers that they do not derive the knowledge from them which they should obtain as to the best methods of growing corn, wheat, hay and other crops.

Berries a Trap for Game.

Black hawberries are now furnishing delicious meals for hunters in the mountains. They are also being devoured by bears, and they are being picked off the branches by crows and opossums. Indeed the black hawberry is one of the real food products of the woods, and there is no danger of a lost person starving. You cannot convince a mountaineer that the haw is not a food. The only trouble about it is that it takes a great many berries to make a banquet. It is the thick, meaty flesh surrounding the seed that is eaten, and in some sections housewives make them into a sort of jelly. Experienced hunters make it a practice to look for bears and grouse in the vicinity of a clump of haw bushes, and generally succeed in finding the game there. The berries grow in large clusters like elderberries, and a quart can be picked in a few minutes.—Minneapolis Tribune.

The Best Proof.

The only thing that can be said to refute the assertion that no woman can dress decently on less than $20.00 a year is that most of them do.

WHY THE MUSTACHE SHOULD BE POPULAR AND STYLISH.

James R. Garfield, George L. Meyer and Charles J. Bonaparte. All of these gentlemen are members of the President's cabinet.

It has been frequently said that in the last few years that the popularity of the mustache and whiskers is on the wane. As a matter of fact, if mustache was ever justified in its adornment for the year 1908, the man with the mustache can quote no less an authority for his style than the president of the United States and every stage member of the cabinet. As a matter of fact this is a rare coincidence. It is doubtful whether eleven prominent men could ordinarily be gathered together, without premeditation, so that the entire eleven were either unanimously in favor of the mustache or unanimously opposed. And yet here is the president's official family, each and every one, with hair on his face.

The president's mustache is far from debonair. It drops too much at the ends to be considered as bonaparte. And yet it is decidedly a vigorous mustache which has no counterpart in the other cabinet mustaches unless it be that of Victor L. Metcalf, secretary of the navy. Victor Metcalf's mustache, however, is much wider and fiercer grained. The Taft mustache is decidedly sunny and yet it is expressive of good nature in every hair. The post French style is more apparent on the faces of Postmaster General Meyer, Secretary Garfield of the Interior, and Attorney General Bonaparte. Mr. Cortelyou has one of the plain old fashioned kind. Vice President Fairbanks, Secretary Strauss and Secretary Wilson all glory, not only in the mustache, but also in full equipment of whiskers.

Surely if ever there was authority for mustache styles it is the present season.

MAYOR BECKER'S CAMPAIGN BALLOON.

Chicago, Ill.—That Mayor Sholly Becker is sincere in his statement that he would campaign Wisconsin in a balloon this fall for the governorship of Wisconsin is proven by the above picture. This shows Mayor Becker on the right and C. A. Corey, the owner of the balloon, on the left, in a recent trip to test the balloon. The picture was taken when they were about 100 feet in the air.

From this balloon, Mayor Becker will address the various districts of Wisconsin in his gubernatorial campaign this fall.

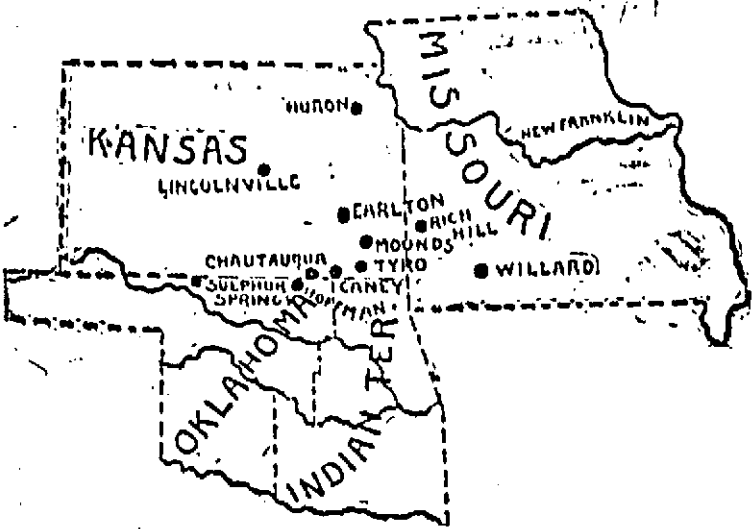

The basket in which Mr. Becker expects to pass much of his time exhorting his fellow citizens, is as comfortable as a Pullman car. There is room in the basket for ten passengers, two large seats being arranged on either side, and camp chairs about the carpeted floor.

Nor need the aerial spellbinder and his political managers become hungry, for there is in the car a camping outfit for cooking purposes and a fine stove.

The basket is hand made and lined with cork, as a precaution against disaster should a landing be forced upon water. The entire outfit weighs less than 400 pounds and it can lift three tons. Three hundred sacks of ballast will be used.

Mr. Corey will enter the "Chicago" in the International aeronautique contest in Chicago for the world's championship in July.

MAP SHOWS THE DISTRICT RAIDED BY ROBBERS IN KANSAS, MISSOURI AND OKLAHOMA.

Topeka, Kan.—Robbers have been holding away in southwest Kansas, southwest Missouri and northeast Oklahoma. During the last four months bandits have robbed eleven banks and carried away $51,000.

Twelve attempts have been made altogether to get into the strong boxes of the banks and in only one case did the desperadoes fail. The country is wrought up and detectives are searching day and night for the bandits, who have thus far been able to foil all attempts to capture them. Large rewards are offered and the head of any one of the bandits would be a valuable trophy to the man who brings it in.

All banks are taking extra precautions against raids and it is believed that it will not be long before the famous battle at Coffeyville will be reproduced in one of the towns.

There have been bank and train robberies in this same country in years gone by, but sooner or later the gang that accomplished the work were captured or most of the members killed. In not a single instance it there the slightest clue to the robbers in the last twelve years.

It was thought that a band of outlaws led by Henry Starr, a former desperado, made the raid on the Canby (Kan.) bank, and Starr was hunted for weeks, but not captured. As a matter of fact, there is no evidence that Starr was in the raid.

Here is the list of bank robberies, the amount obtained in each, the date, that have occurred within the last four months.

New Franklin, Mo., $4,000 Nov. 20
Canby, Kan., $4,000 Dec. 5
Sulphur Springs, Ok., $4,000 Feb. 9
Willard, Mo., $1,000 Feb. 11
Rich Hill, Mo., $2,500 Feb. 12
Lincolnville, Kan., $2,500 Mar. 13
Troy, Kan., $2,500 Mar. 13
Hoffman, Ok., $1,000 Mar. 19
Earlton, Kan., $1,000 Mar. 26
Mound, Kan., $1,000 Apr. 3
Huron, Kan., $1,000 Apr. 7
Chautauqua, Kan., $1,000 Apr. 21

It is generally supposed that all of the burglaries were the work of the same band, and all of the daylight holdups were performed by the same men. Two to four men took part in all of the burglaries, while three men were all that actually held up and robbed the four banks. None of the men have been identified, but the earmarks of each crime were such that the officers believe that only two bands operated.

In each burglary the bank vaults were blown open with nitroglycerin and the detectives placed on the alert were practically the same. In each instance the men left the town on hand cars which they stole in the railroad yards.

They rode on the handcars to some railroad crossing twenty miles distant from the scene of the robbery and there boarded a train. The robbers were so timed that the men were able to get away and ride to the railroad crossing just in time to catch a train. The handcars always were found at the crossing and when the robbers became known the trainmen reported three or four men boarding their train at this crossing.

The daylight holdups were accomplished by three men. One man stayed outside to hold the horses and watch the citizens. The other two entered the bank and while one held the bank officials and clerks at bay with his gun the other put all the money in sight into a sack.

The three rode away together and usually got a good start before the alarm was given. The robbers always entered the banks either just after the bank had opened or just a few minutes before closing time, when it was unlikely that there were many persons in the bank.

In all the robberies the depositors and banks did not lose any money as all the banks carried burglary insurance and the insurance companies paid the bills regularly and hired the detectives to hunt the bandits. In the bank burglaries the bank buildings were damaged almost as much as the amount taken from the bank vaults. The building at Rich Hill, Mo., was totally wrecked and all the others partially wrecked and the bank vaults destroyed.

A TOWN SCOLD STORY

How Sylvanus Crabb Escaped Being Tarred and Feathered.

INCIDENT OF THE LATE PANIC

Man Who Always Had Run Down the Town Met His Waterloo When His Neighbors Determined to Save the Factory and Also Enjoy a Joke.

Sylvanus Crabb was the town scold of Coryville. He was a native of the place, but no stranger to whom he talked over would have suspected the fact. Sylvanus never missed a chance to abuse Coryville and everybody and everything in Coryville.

"Yes, sir," Mr. Crabb would remark, transferring his quid of plug tobacco from the right to the left side of his mouth, "this here old town ain't fit for the junk heap. Why, I've lived here, man and boy, for forty-nine years, and the town's been going down ever since I can recollect. Yes, sir, Coryville's a mighty pore town to live in, but some of us can't get out."

The stranger to whom Sylvanus confided these lifelong impressions would sit patiently in his chair on the hotel veranda or stand patiently at the depot awaiting his train. Sometimes he would reply with a question:

"Are you in business here, Mr. Crabb?"

"Business! I should say not. I don't mix with the people of this here town. I don't. My folks left me the old homestead and some rentin' houses, and I live off the income. But I don't spend my money around here—no, sir! I buy my supplies in bulk right straight from Chicago and get my clothes there, too; send my measure in by mail. When I need any new furniture I look it up in a catalogue and send right off for it myself. These here Coryville people don't make nothing off of Sylvanus Crabb—no, sir!"

One day a stranger of distinguished appearance came to Coryville. It was in the midst of the late unpleasantness—the financial depression.

"Yes, sir," Mr. Crabb took occasion to say to the stranger, "this town's no good at all. No place for business, sir."

"I was beginning to think so myself," replied the stranger, "from what I have heard from my representatives here."

"And who might you be?" inquired Sylvanus.

"My name is Hawkins," said the stranger, "and I'm the owner of the Coryville shoe factory. I came down here half inclined to close up the factory for good and consolidate it with my main works in Chicago, and what you have told me about the slowness of Coryville has determined me to do so. I thank you."

Mr. Crabb stopped in his tracks and stared. He was worried for two reasons. One was that two or three young men who on other occasions had told Mr. Crabb that he was a useless ornament to Coryville had overheard him running down the town and had heard Mr. Hawkins' statement as to closing the shoe factory, the one institution which kept the town from disintegration during the panic. The other reason for Mr. Crabb's worry was that his four houses, which rented for $15 a month each and supplied his entire cash income, were occupied by men who would be compelled to leave town and look elsewhere for employment when the factory closed, they being skilled employees therein and having no other trade.

"It's '23' for you," remarked one of the young men mentioned as he passed by Sylvanus. These young men worked in the shoe factory.

That night Sylvanus sat in his home feeling truly dejected. His dual knock at Coryville had had results disastrous to himself. But he did not brood long in somber silence. Suddenly somebody knocked at his door. Mr. Crabb opened the door and found himself confronted by nearly a hundred rube-headed men. They were no musks or any other disguises. They were young men from the shoe factory, merchants of the town, lawyers and others whom Sylvanus had been running down for thirty years. They carried with them a large bag of feathers and a pot of tar, with a brush stuck in it.

The spokesman was the young man who had hissed "23" at the town scold. This man, after Sylvanus had obeyed the order to come out into the street, said sternly:

"Sylvanus Crabb, town scold and general nuisance, unless you march straight to the hotel, call Mr. Hawkins out, get down on your knees before him and before all of us tell him that Coryville is the best town on earth and plead for him to keep his factory here we'll tar and feather you and set every dog in town on you."

Sylvanus had met his Waterloo. He walked to the hotel surrounded by the stern faced men, his neighbors with whom he never had neighbored, and, after kneeling to Mr. Hawkins and making his declaration and plea in whining tones, he was permitted to go home.

Next day the local paper contained an account of the affair and also stated that Mr. Hawkins had determined not only to leave his factory in Coryville, but to enlarge it.

Mr. Crabb also learned from the newspaper story that the committee of public safety had visited Mr. Hawkins just before waiting upon himself and had induced the factory owner to change his mind after telling him the life history of the town scold, over which he laughed heartily and long.

CAN M'GOVERN' COME BACK?

Will the Once "Terrible Terry" Do What No Pugilist Ever Did Before?

Terry McGovern, once the greatest featherweight pugilist that ever stepped into a prize ring, is going back to it again.

"Will Terry come back?" is the question on every fighting enthusiast's tongue. "Will he be able to stand up there and take a bit of a beating?" is another. Terry has trained hard and earnestly to get into the shape he was in once. He spent weeks training with the New York National Baseball club in Texas and worked well.

He bears every mark of being as good physically and mentally as he ever was. His eyes are clear and his complexion good. What is more, he has his old punch, so his sparring partners say. Since he left the Giants he has been in training.

Terry may not be the swift fellow he was a few years back, but he is fast and may be able to go fast enough to suit any of the lightweight pugilists.

THE DEER TRUST

When Upon Sinclair, the socialist, gained access to the White House through "The Jungle," the gamester was thrown down, and was immediately declared on the packing industry, familiarly known as the deer trust.

Commissioner Garfield, representing the government, was sent out on a tour of investigation, and after months of research, returned with the startling announcement that the packers were making not an overy few slaughtered the enormous profit of 30 cents.

This was less villainous than anticipated, and the packers were taken out of the criminal class, and permitted to join in a period with the representatives of "predatory wealth."

But the recent advance in meat products has occasioned another crusade, and the house was entertained, the other day by an effusion from Congressman Hitchcock of Nebraska in which Commissioner Garfield is attacked as a duped of the packers.

This enterprising representative comes from a state that would be a cipher on the map but for Bryan, and his beef industry, yet he has discovered that the packers, instead of making 30 cents per head on beef, are growing corpulent and oppressive at the rate of $8.10 less 35 cents, and offer the following statement as proof:

PROFITS ON A STEER.

"It is not alone by controlling live stock marketed at stock yards and controlling also the sale of the products that these fortunes have been made. I caused a friend of mine, well posted in such matters, to make me a statement of what became of a thousand-pound steer at the South Omaha live stock market. Such a thousand-pound steer will be purchased by the packing house for about $31 today. It will yield about 580 pounds of meat, now selling at wholesale at ten cents a pound, or $58. The tallow, cut-fat, rattle-fat and trimmings at six cents a pound, the present market price, would be $34; the liver sixty cents; the heart a little over ten cents; the tongue at forty-four cents; the hide, $5.50; the feet fifteen cents; the head ten cents; the brains five cents; the bones ten cents; the tripe thirty-five cents; blood fertilizer, twenty-six and two-thirds cents; casings, hams, middles and rounds at twenty-five cents; a total of $72.10.

"We have, there, made up by a practical man, the products of a steer converted into modern packing house products, and the cost of killing, dressing and chilling is only thirty-five cents. We have a $61 steer converted into $72.10 worth of products and yet Mr. Garfield has come before the country with the claim that the profit is only ninety-nine cents on each steer."

What a large head this "representative" congressman has for business. The colleges must have overlooked him or he would be holding down a chair in some institution of learning, rather than fooling away his talents at the seat of government.

numerous losses and expenses connected with the business. This is the sort of twaddle and misrepresentation that is prolonging the era of depression, and too much of it emanates from the seat of government. The country is entitled to a rest.

"THE NEW POLITICAL ECONOMY"

"The basis of every fortune is economy. It is the saving of the first $1,000 that enables the creator of a fortune, by the use of that capital, to make $10,000, and then with that $10,000 to make $100,000. A man who clears $5,000 a year in his business and spends $5,000 a year, saves no capital by which to extend his business and thus increase his income.

"As it is with an individual, so it is with a nation of individuals. If we as a nation spend all that we make out of the soil, and in addition waste our national resources, we cannot hope to go on forever without feeling the pinch of poverty. It is only by economy, by saving of capital, that as a country, or as individuals, we can go forward and widen our prosperity.

"This is the simplest and the best political economy. The surest way of establishing another boom in American trade is for everybody—capitalist, investor, banker, merchant, manufacturer, professional man and laborer—to get down to a more economical way of living and a more economical basis of production.

"But we are told that 'a new political economy' has been created, and that the new road to wealth is not the straight and narrow lane of saving, but a broad boulevard of high wages, rates and prices. It is not, we are told, by reducing expenses that we are to get rich, but by increasing them. Make everybody pay more for everything—that's the pith of the new doctrine."

These practical suggestions from the Wall Street Journal, are worth considering, for prosperity breeds extravagance and prosperity has been so universal that persons, as well as public economy, has been overlooked, to large extent.

It is so easy to spend other people's money, and especially public money, that men who are careful of personal expenses, frequently become reckless in dealing with public funds.

It is easier still to waste natural resources, and exhaust nature's storehouses, and so our forests and coal fields are invaded, with but little thought of future generations.

The era of depression, through which the nation is passing, will prove profitable, if it instills into the public and private mind, a spirit of frugality and economy.

THE RAILROADS

That the railroads of the country have been "hard hit," in the prosperity panic, which struck the nation last October, is apparent to every observer. They were hit indeed before the panic, for all sorts of adverse legislation and fines, had made life a burden for many months.

The panic, however, was the climax, and for the past six months, rolling stock has been idle, profits wiped out, and capital impaired to such an extent that bankruptcy stalks many corporations in the face.

Under these conditions it is perfectly natural that managers and executive boards should exhaust every effort to increase revenues and recoup losses.

While working forces have been reduced to the minimum, wages have not been cut to any great extent, and are not likely to be, except as a last resort.

The contemplated advance in freight rates, seemed the only outlet, and this is meeting with so much opposition that it may be deemed unwise. Henry Clows of New York offers the following very practical suggestion on the situation:

"Whether the proposed advance in railroad rates is part of the scheme to advance the market or not remains to be seen. Such an advance under existing conditions would certainly be very poor policy. The public hostility to railroads is just beginning to abate; the extreme depression in freights will not last, and the advance would be a burden upon the producer and consumer when he is least able to bear it. 'No doubt the railroads have a grievance; but they must do as others are doing, cut expenses to the limit, endure a temporary shrinkage in profits, and await the resumption of traffic that will surely come in time. Any other policy will certainly revive public hostility and react unfavorably upon the railroads themselves. They had better accept their share of adversity the same as other people, and devote themselves to economy and keeping down expenses until business revives.'"

Public sentiment is changing, and an era of common sense has already dawned. The feeling of antagonism against railroads is subsiding, and these corporations can hardly afford to block the wheels of progress, when turning in the right direction.

Factories are resuming work, in all parts of the country, and a more hopeful feeling prevails. Gradually we are getting back to normal conditions, and when the next crop is ready to move, business will move with it, and good times will follow.

The socialist convention, now in session in Chicago, is engaged in discussing the merits of the two principal candidates—Debs and Haywood. Either name at the head of a national ticket is enough to condemn it. People have not forgotten the Haymarket riot nor the Idaho massacres.

The weather is again open for discussion and everybody invited to join. What a comfort that this topic never fails.

Hired Girl, Hired Man.

Considerable fuss was recently made because an eastern millionaire had "stooped" to marry a hired girl living in town.

Why? The girl must have graces and personal points or the millionaire would not have chosen her. And it is safe to say that morally she is his equal if not his superior.

There is no stooping about it. They were on a level, or, if anything, the hired girl was just a little above the millionaire.

All of us in America who amount to anything are hired people. No doubt this millionaire is a hired man in charge of some big corporation. Roosevelt is a hired man.

And so are all our senators and congressmen and diplomats—servants in the pay of the people.

And, fellow citizens: One of the things that are the matter with this country is the growing tendency to look down on the man who works with his hands or the woman who works with her hands.

The tendency is devilish and dangerous. Let us learn again that the hands that are scarred by honest toil bear wounds as honorable as those received in battle. The overalls and the glug-hum aprons of labor are as honorable as and vastly more useful than all the martial trappings and uniforms of war.

Let us learn again that the doctrine of the dignity of labor is fundamental to the republic.

And so we say hush! for the hired girl and the hired man, these two who loved each other for what they were and paid no attention to the accidents of fortune!

SPECIAL VENIRE OF TEN JURORS

SUMMONED TO TAKE PLACES OF THOSE EXCUSED.

TRIAL OF $5,000 ACTION

Brought by Second Nat'l Bank of Beloit Against Water Power Co. Was Commenced This Afternoon.

Of the 35 jurors drawn for the May term of circuit court, George H. H. of Union who was ill, Charles Miller of the town of York, who has been moved out of the county, and Henry M. Hansen, head of the furniture factory, failed to report for duty and were excused. The others who were selected of their duties were: George Lahey of Beloit, J. M. Huggins of La Prairie, John Wall of Union, P. E. Purdy of Orfordville, Charles E. of Spring Valley, John L. S. of Beloit, and C. R. Pierce of Edgerton.

Special Venire of Ten. To fill those vacancies a special venire of ten jurors was drawn. Those summoned were: Fred Schuller, C. J. Meyer, and C. N. Van Kirk of Janesville, P. E. Martin of Beloit, George Vickers of Edgerton, C. J. Mathey of the town of Rock, Frank Morlet of Newark, J. M. Marquette of Milton, Robert Plaster of Bradford, and M. H. Downing of Milton.

Jurors for First Case. The jurors drawn for the first trial were: R. H. Clifton, C. C. Carr, William H. Huggins, Warren Huggins, William H. Huggins, Samuel Locke, E. L. Huggins, W. H. Gray, C. H. Florida, H. W. Huggins, J. Keenan, and Oliver Marwin. All others out on the panel were excused until Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The first case is that of the Second National Bank of Beloit vs. the Beloit Water Power Co., J. C. Hood and W. G. Wheeler are attorneys for the plaintiff and J. H. Mount, Smith & Avery represent the defendant. The plaintiff seeks to recover about $5,000 for damage alleged to have been done to a stone building on the river, the foundations of which gave way soon after the water power co. in a time of high water opened a sluice gate near the bank, thereby, it is claimed, diverting the current from its natural flow. The jurors were taken to Beloit to view the premises late this afternoon.

ANOTHER INCIDENT AT BIDWELL SALOON

Leater Austin, a Farmer Old Enough to Know Better, Was "Touched" to the Tune of $10 on Saturday.

It was another case wherein any sympathy for the victim would be wasted and the woman got the worst of it. Also, the place where it occurred comes into the limelight of unenviable notoriety by reason of the fact that a very similar incident in which an Orfordville man was molested of $25 occurred there only a few weeks ago. About five o'clock Saturday afternoon Lester Austin, aged 55 years and a farmer from the town of Johnson, wandered into the Bidwell saloon on West Milwaukee street and was presently on more than speaking terms with a Mrs. Alice Murray, who claims Milwaukee as her home; also with an unknown man who presently accompanied Austin to a place $2 on his account. In bringing the $2 to light, Austin probably gave the unknown a glimpse of the other money he had on his person. At any rate, immediately after the party had stepped out of the place and returned again, Austin missed a $10 bill. Immediately he accused the woman and a call was sent to the police station. Mrs. Murray, in tears, admitted that she was leading an immoral life in order to support her family, but denied that she had ever stolen money from anyone. She had been behind the bars for about three hours when the bartender scolded her statement and offered to turn over the $10 if that would effect her release. Meanwhile the unknown had made his getaway but the money up to the bartender in order to escape pursuit and possible prosecution. The woman was told to leave town and did so.

Finishing by Quick Dispatch. A New York girl drank two quarts of vanilla, which is quicker than going to a finishing school.—New York American.

REGULAR SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

Everlasting Roller Question and Matter of Sam Brown's Salary May Be Up Again for Decision.

Sam Brown's salary and the roller question are two matters which may or may not be taken up at the regular session of the common council this evening. The ten days set for the contest of road rollers at the session of April 13 have now elapsed and if the trial of the Kelly-Springfield steam machine, the only competitor, may be formed a contest the aldermen are bound by the resolution of the old council to declare it the winner and buy it. This roller weighed 23,500 pounds on the cars and over 12 tons when filled with water; pulled the 17-inch roller up the hills on Wheel street to the city for $2,000, allowing something like $750 for the old Buffalo Pitts roller. The operators of the Kelly-Springfield roller, who are the county board tomorrow. On the other hand, W. C. Kierman of Whitewater, agent for the Austin Western motor roller, has arrived in the city and wants the council to delay any decision in the matter until the arrival of the machine which the county board has ordered, when a demonstration, which he assures them will be convincing, can be given. He says that his company never agreed to any contest and that the efforts of the agents to get a machine here within the time stipulated were unavailing. Aside from these matters, nothing more than routine business can be promised.

DROVE RECKLESSLY ABOUT WITH SIXTY LBS. OF DYNAMITE

Andrew Nelson of Avon Went on a Spree Yesterday Which Terrorized Inhabitants in Hills' Radius.
"Deputy Sheriff John Lynch arrested here from Avon today with Andrew Nelson, a man about forty years of age who chops wood and does grubbing work for a living. It is alleged that Nelson, while in a state of wild intoxication, yesterday, drove recklessly about the country with 60 pounds of dynamite in his rig, terrorizing the inhabitants over a wide radius. It is supposed that he got the stuff for the purpose of blowing out stump. The deputy sheriff undertook the hazardous task of arresting the man and confiscating the explosive, and accomplished it without any serious results. When brought to the jail Nelson inquired anxiously as to whether or not the authorities would kill him. He is believed to be demented and may be examined on this score.

CARRIED INSURANCE IN HIS RIGHT SOCK

Pat Devine of Walworth Calmly Removed Shoe in Court-room and Extracted Ten-Dollar Bill.

"Those who fear making the primeiros path may well consider the forethought of Pat Devine of Walworth in carrying against the cyclist's and unexpected contingencies thereof. When he had been found guilty of drunkenness and a fine and costs of $2.10 levied against him, with the alternative of five days in jail, in municipal court this morning, the guardians of the law who had previously searched the man and found only a few small coins in his pockets, naturally expected that Mr. Devine would be forced to prolong his visit in Janesville until the fine could be paid. They were somewhat surprised at the good humor with which he received the announcement of his doom and utterly astonished when, after carefully asking the court to repeat the exact terms of the cash wanted, he walked to the rear of the courtroom and with his back turned to the audience, calmly removed his right shoe and after extracting from his sock a good sized roll, pulled out a crisp $10 bill. Having settled and received his change, Mr. Devine gave a good-natured wink to the stupefied onlookers as he swung blithely through the outer portals. John Johnson, who planned his predicament on friends from Orfordville, hoped to be able to raise $10, but James Tiffany was not so sanguine about the $2 and costs assessed against him.

ROBERTS WITHDRAWS HIS NAME FROM RACE

Racine Sheriff Decides He Will Not Become Candidate For Cooper's Seat in Congress.

After visiting Janesville last Thursday and holding consultation with several of the leading republicans elsewhere in the district, Sheriff D. Elmer Roberts of Racine county, who a few days ago was announced as a candidate for congress on the republican ticket against Congressman H. A. Cooper, returned to Racine from a trip through the district and withdrew from the race. Mr. Roberts said he learned that Thomas Nolan of Janesville was a candidate for the position and had no intention of pulling out, also that a Walworth county man was about to announce himself as a candidate.

OFFICE OPENED HERE BY OWEN THOMAS CO.

Temporary Quarters are in the North River Street Building Formerly Used by Sash and Door Co.

The Owen Thomas Motor Car Co. has opened a temporary office in the building on North River street, formerly used for the same purpose, by the Janesville Sash and Door Co. At present the office force consists of two designers and a stenographer and the immediate work will be concerned with the completion of certain details in design. One of the gentlemen in charge stated this morning that the factory building across the way could not be utilized, but that suitable quarters might be secured in the vicinity. The question of the location of the factory is, therefore, still pending. Mr. Thomas is in Chicago today but is expected back tomorrow. Orders for more cars than can be turned out this season, according to present plans, have already been received.

They talked during dinner of the recent anarchic activity. "But, papa, what is an anarchist?" little Willie asked. "Well, my boy," replied the father, "he's a person who is always blowing somebody up." The child turned to his mother. "Then you are an anarchist, ma?" he said.

"Anything on deposit?" asked the girl's father, brusquely. "Not exactly in my own name," replied the rising young attorney, "but I've just been appointed receiver of a bank." After this the essential "How you, my children, was a foregone conclusion."

WEST POINTER A SUICIDE.

Former Lieutenant in Army Kills Himself in Washington.

Washington, May 11.—Charles E. Bamford, a graduate of West Point and who resigned from the army as a second lieutenant in September, 1906, shot and killed himself at his room at the Regent hotel in this city Sunday. From letters found among his effects his address is thought to be 309 Hamilton avenue, Trenton, N. J. Bamford had recently been engaged in civil engineering, but a letter addressed to Adjt. Gen. Alnsworth, asking for a reappointment to the army, which was found in his pocket, leads to the belief that his visit to Washington was for the purpose of being restored to the army.

Kansas City, Mo., May 11.—George P. Case, aged 26, storekeeper of the Pullman company, and who came here recently from Cincinnati, where his father is well to do, committed suicide Sunday by drinking corrosive sublimate.

NARROW ESCAPE OF FLYER.

Attempt to Wreck Train Foiled by Switching Engine.

Washington, Pa., May 11.—The passing of a shifting engine, which the would-be train-wreckers had not counted upon, undoubtedly averted serious disaster to the east-bound flyer from St. Louis to Pittsburgh on the Pennsylvania railroad of the Pennsylvania system between here and McDonald late Saturday night. An obstruction was placed on the tracks in such manner, experienced railroad men say, that nothing could have saved the fast train had it not been discovered. The switching engine ran into the obstruction and was derailed.

TWO BANQUETS ARE GIVEN

Annapolis Alumni and Press Representatives at Feasts—Enlisted Men to Do Well Entertained This Week.

San Francisco, May 11.—After four days of indulgence in all the varied forms of hospitality provided by San Francisco, which had worn well nigh everyone to the point of physical exhaustion, the officers and men of the Pacific and Atlantic fleets spent a Sunday of recuperation and rest.

Functon has followed function in such rapid succession since the fleet's arrival that they have hardly had time to finish with one before beginning another. Parades and reviews during the day, followed by automobile rides, receptions, balls and numerous social events, have occupied almost every hour of time.

Annapolis Alumni Banquet. Admiral Thomas remained at the Fairmont hotel all day. Saturday night he contracted a slight cold at the banquet which he attended in Oakland, which prevented him leaving his apartments. Sunday night, however, he attended the alumni dinner of the graduates of Annapolis given at the Fairmont hotel. This dinner was attended by about 150 officers from the combined fleets and many civilians who are graduates of the naval academy.

A breakfast was given at 11 o'clock at the Fairmont to the representatives of the press with the fleet. It was one of the most elaborate entertainments that has been provided for the newspaper men on the cruise. Mayor Edward I. Taylor was one of the principal speakers, among whom were also ex-Mayor James D. Phelan.

Gavin McNab and representatives of both the visiting and the local press. One of the interesting speeches was that of Henry Renteria, who spoke upon the navy's needs and the necessity of more attention to the affairs of the navy by the press of the country.

Plenty to Do This Week. The program for the coming week is filled with a variety of events in the different cities around the bay. The festivities in this city will continue without interruption, the entertainment of the enlisted men with automobile and trolley rides being a feature. An automobile ride for 400 officers of the fleet was on the program for Monday. Many athletic events, in which the men from the fleet will participate, are also scheduled. There will be excursions for both officers and men to San Jose, Vallejo, Berkeley and other nearby cities. Trips to Mount Tamalpais and the big trees will be made on different days. The official programmed entertainments will not end until next Saturday night.

The enlisted men are to be given a special entertainment on Tuesday evening, when the California club, an exclusive women's organization, will tender a reception to be followed by a grand ball in their honor at the Auditorium. It is expected that more than 2,000 sailors will attend. They will be provided with dancing partners from among the hundreds of young ladies who have volunteered to assist at the entertainment.

Sperry in Command May 15. Rear Admiral Charles M. Sperry will succeed Rear Admiral Thomas as commander-in-chief on May 15. The Pacific fleet, commanded by Admiral Dayton, will depart from San Francisco about the same date for a short cruise down the coast. Admiral Dayton ranks Admiral Sperry, but the former's departure will relieve the situation of any complications.

A notable feature in connection with the fleet's presence at San Francisco is the uniformly excellent conduct of the enlisted men ashore. The peace officers have not the least difficulty in controlling the situation at all times, although thousands of the sailors are given where leave daily. The fleet patrol, commanded by Lieut. Commander Cole, has also accomplished excellent results in restraining any tendency toward disorder.

Horrible Epidemic in Kiev Prison. Kiev, Russia, May 11.—A frightful epidemic of exanthematic typhoid is raging in the city prison. More than 200 deaths so far have occurred and practically all of the inmates are infected. The authorities are withholding details.

WANTS CASTRO PUNISHED

FRANCE EAGER FOR ROOSEVELT
TO USE "BIG STICK."

Minister Russell on Way Home—
Consul Moffat May Be Taken from La Guaira.

Paris, May 11.—The recent expulsion of eight Frenchmen from Venezuela has served to increase the sentiment of French public opinion against President Castro's arrogant treatment of foreigners. The Temps reviewing the situation expresses regret that France did not send ships to bombard Puerto Caballo. Instead of simply breaking off diplomatic relations, when M. Tugay, the French chargé d'affaires, was expelled from Venezuela two years ago. It declares that the time has come to act.

"The United States seems disposed to begin," says the Temps. "Senator Cullom declared that Castro deserved a good spanking. Never was there a more propitious occasion for President Roosevelt to use the big stick, and France is perfectly willing to see him enact the role of peacemaker. Venezuela must be taught a lesson, and it is immaterial whether it comes from Washington or elsewhere, provided it comes quickly."

Willemstad, May 11.—W. W. Russell, the American minister to Venezuela, sailed from here Sunday on the steamship Caracas for the United States, where he will spend his vacation of two months. He arrived here from Puerto Caballo, Venezuela, after a visit to the United States embassy in Padua. His departure from Puerto Caballo was greeted with a salute of 15 guns.

That there is a tension in the diplomatic relations between the United States and Venezuela was shown by the fact that none of the Venezuelan officials was on hand to bid Mr. Russell goodbye.

Thomas D. Moffat, American consul at La Guaira, is still at that city without means of communication because of the plague. It is thought that the United States may send a gunboat there for the purpose of transferring the consul, because at present there are no American interests requiring his presence. President Castro's decree shutting off La Guaira may be prolonged indefinitely, or until a full week passes without new cases of the plague making their appearance.

BRYAN MEN PLAN TO BOLT.

Minnesota Probably Will Have Two Democratic Conventions.

St. Paul, Minn., May 11.—The Minnesota Democratic state convention to elect delegates to the national convention will assemble in St. Paul next Thursday, May 14, to instruct Minnesota's delegation to cast 22 votes in the Denver gathering for the nomination of Gov. John A. Johnson of this state for the presidency.

Approximately 400 Bryan men, who have been elected to the state convention or who will contest the seating of Johnson delegates, will walk out of the convention hall as soon as the regular convention seats the Johnson delegates, and will hold a bolting convention which will elect a solid Bryan delegation to Denver. At least, this is the announced plan of the Bryan leaders.

San Francisco, May 11.—An unusual situation will present itself when the Republican state convention meets at Sacramento next Thursday. Regardless of the fact that President Roosevelt has repeatedly stated that he will not be a candidate at Chicago, the Republican voters of California by unofficial ballot at the primaries last week for the selection of delegates to the state convention declared their preference for the president over the other candidates, and it is reasonably certain that the Sacramento convention will carry out the wishes of the voters and instruct for him.

NOTABLE MEN WILL MEET.

Great Conference on Natural Resources in White House.

Washington, May 11.—This will be an eventful and historic week in Washington. The arrival has already begun of one of the most eminent groups of men that has ever gathered here. Included in the assemblage will be 41 governors of states and territories, their advisers to the number of 153, and 25 presidents of the leading national organizations of the United States—a total of 256 men notable for their positions and ability to grapple with a great public question.

The occasion is the conference on natural resources, which will be held at the White House and over which President Roosevelt will preside.

Night Rider Outrage in Indiana. Aurora, Ind., May 11.—Early Sunday morning a band of marauders, supposedly from Kentucky, ruined the tobacco beds on the farm of Henry Kehler, five miles below here. They dug a grave, put in an old sword, a box of matches and a note warning Kehler that if he attempted to raise any more tobacco he would occupy the grave. The farmers are alert and expect more trouble.

More Derelictions by Mackay. Reno, Nev., May 11.—Charles H. Mackay of the Postal Telegraph company, in addition to $100,000 for the John W. Mackay statue, and $50,000 for campus improvements at the University of Nevada, has announced further benefactions for the furnishings of the school of mines and an annual contribution of $5,000 for maintenance of the school.

Belgium Mines Well Looked After. The death rate among the miners is low in Belgium than in any other country.

CONGRESS MAY ADJOURN MAY 25

CONDITION OF SUPPLY BILLS
FAVORABLE TO THIS.

GOOD PROGRESS IN HOUSE

It Has Passed All But Two of the Appropriation Measures—Senate Not Far Behind Lower Body.

Washington, May 11.—The supply bills of congress, in which appropriations are to be made for the support of the government for the next fiscal year, beginning on July 1, are in such condition in both houses that if no complications arise in connection with other legislation, it will be possible to reach a final adjournment by May 25.

There are 14 of these general measures, carrying an aggregate of almost a billion dollars, and of these the house of representatives, in which all of them originate, has passed 12, all but the military academy and the general deficiency bill. Both of these carry comparatively small sums, both are of such character that they seldom arouse opposition, and both could be disposed of in very brief order if necessary. The academy bill will be reported to the house early this week and the deficiency bill not later than Thursday.

Two Big Bills in Senate.

The senate is not so well along as it could be on account of the fact that the bills after they have been considered and passed upon by the house. The senate is, however, unusually close upon the heels of the lower body and in addition to the deficiency and academy bills, has left only the post office and the sundry civil bills. These, however, are two of the largest of the appropriation bills, carrying as they do between them about one-third of the aggregate appropriation made for the session. Both unquestionably will arouse much discussion in the senate and it is probable that the greater part of the time for the next two weeks will be given for their consideration.

The post office bill will be the next after the agricultural bill to be taken up in the senate, and by the time it is disposed of, it is hoped the committee on appropriations will be prepared to present its report on the sundry civil bill.

Only Two Signed Yet.

While a majority of the appropriation bills have been passed by both houses, only two have received the approval of the president and become laws. These are the urgent deficiency bill and the Indian bill. Many of the others are in conference, but the army bill, while it has not yet gone to the president, has been passed by both houses. The naval bill has been agreed upon in conference, and no doubt will soon be forwarded to the chief executive. These two bills are of unusual importance to the military branch of the government because of the provision they make for increased pay to all lines of the service.

The pension bill, which is still in conference, carries the appropriation for the increased pension for widows, which has been authorized. It is the largest pension bill ever passed by congress. The legislative, executive and judicial bills have been in conference ever since March, but the delay in reporting it is due rather to the absence of the conferees than to any material difference of opinion among them. The fortifications bill is also in the hands of the conferees.

Tributes to the memory of the late Mr. Adolph Meyer of Louisiana were paid in the house of representatives Sunday.

School Principal Kills Himself.

Bozette City, Mich., May 11.—Walter C. Slater, principal of the Bozette Falls high school, shot himself through the heart Saturday night in his bedroom just after excusing himself for a few minutes from his Sunday school class of boys who had arranged a banquet in his honor.

Journalist Dies at Sea.

Cherbourg, May 11.—Joseph Leicht, a first cabin passenger on board the North German Lloyd steamship Lutzow, which arrived here Sunday, died during the voyage. It was stated that Mr. Leicht was an American journalist. The body was taken ashore and will be shipped to New York on Wednesday next.

Jealous Man Shoots Two.

Kenosha, Wis., May 11.—Martin Schleyer shot and seriously wounded his divorced wife, Martha Schleyer, here Sunday afternoon. He then turned the weapon upon Herman Koehler and inflicted mortal wounds. Jealousy and drink are declared to be the cause of the shooting.

Rely on Yourself.

All things come to him who hustles while he waits. Don't sit down with folded hands or stand with arms akimbo set until the occasion tells you what to do; don't wait for something to turn up or somebody to come along and take you by the hand to lead you up, without any labor on your part, to the heights others have gained by push and perseverance.

BLATZ BEER

Words of Praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Blatz" refers you.

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind, enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Blatz Beer of Milwaukee in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evident honesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

OIL ON TROUBLED WATERS

SECRETARY TAFT ADJUSTING DISPUTES AT PANAMA.

Tentative Accord Reached in Boundary Question with Colombia and Other Important Matters.

Panama, May 11.—Ever since his arrival here Secretary Taft has been busy holding conferences with President Amador, Foreign Secretary Arango, Senator Arango, the Panamanian minister to the United States, Mr. Squiers, the American minister to Panama, and William Nelson Cromwell, the legal adviser of the Panama Canal company. The conferences were concluded Sunday. They covered numerous topics relating to the treaties which it is desired to negotiate between Colombia, the United States and Panama.

While details are lacking, it is stated that a tentative accord has been reached upon important points, and that decision with reference to the others only awaits special inquiries now in progress. The result of the conferences, it is announced, is satisfactory to all parties concerned.

Colombia's recent seizure of the town of Juazado on the frontier involved in the general boundary question between the two countries, has been fully considered. The Panamanian government has agreed to the suggestion made by Mr. Taft to withhold all action until the secretary of war has had an opportunity personally to confer with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Root.

One of the most important questions affecting the canal zone has been to determine the titles of individual occupants of lands in the zone and the valuation of lands appropriated for canal uses. Until now adjustment had been impossible, but a solution has been reached by which an arbitration tribunal will be constituted under the existing treaty. This tribunal will have the power to determine all questions as to valuations and legal titles. It will be composed of two citizens of the United States and two citizens of Panama, with Gov. Mugoo of Cuba as umpire.

SHOOTS AT HUSBAND ON STAGE.

Alligator Tamer's Wife Causes Sensation in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., May 11.—During a performance at the Majestic theater, a vaudeville house, Saturday night, Mrs. Bert Swan, who occupied a box, fired six shots at her husband, an alligator tamer, while he was on the stage. None of the shots took effect.

Mr. Swan left the stage, a blank curtain was hung down under pretense of showing moving pictures, and a panic was thus averted. After she had been arrested, Mrs. Swan said that she did not intend to kill her husband, but merely shot at the scenery. She refused to discuss her alleged troubles with her husband. Mrs. Swan will accompany her husband to New York.

Socialist Convention Opens.

Chicago, May 11.—Cheers that shook the building met the mention of W. D. Haywood's name in the opening session of the Socialists' national convention Sunday at the Garrick theater. A few faint "He's all right" responses sounded when Eugene V. Debs was mentioned. It showed the temper of the delegates who are in the city for a ten-day convention to choose a nominee for the presidency.

OFF HIS MIND

"Do on know that I'm feeling a heap easier in my mind than I was a week ago?" said the Long Island farmer. "Got the mortgage on your farm paid off?" was asked in reply. "Noup, I haven't got my mortgage to pay off. I was in town last week with some stuff and heard two men talking about the Panama Canal. I'd read something about it, but wasn't posted and when they said that it was to cost $300,000,000 my hair stood up." "Yes, that's the estimated cost," replied the grocer. "I went home and told the old woman and my son Sam. I said to them, say I: 'Git ready for the poorhouse! Git ready for starvation! Git ready for paupers' graves. That Panama Canal is to cost $300,000,000, and it will take the last pig's tail on our farm to pay for our share of it!'" "And their hair stood up?" quipped the grocer. "The old woman fainted dead away, but Sam he took it as cool as ice. He hunted around for a piece of chalk and then went out to digger on the barn door. After an hour he came in with a grin on his face and said: 'Dad, I've got it down plumb fine, and there's no occasion to be skeered. Our share of that $300,000,000 is only 'leven cents.'"

"You can't beat Sam on figures. He'd gone over a dozen times, and it was allus 'leven cents. I give out yoll for joy, and then I writ a letter to the President, enclosing our share, and rode three miles to mail it, and the blamed thing was off my mind forever. Yes, sir, I'm feelin' fine as silk and not a care on my mind, and afore I go home I'm goin' to look around a bit and buy Sam the best dollar jack-knife in this hull town."

HAVE TWO LINES BEEN ARRANGED?

BELIEVE THAT MADISON-JANESVILLE LINE PART OF PLAN.

EDGERTON THINKS SO NOW

Other Line to Run to Kilbourn and be Fed by the Big Dam Across the Wisconsin.

With the appearance of Chief Edgerton and H. H. Zigler in Edgerton the citizens of that corporation have begun dreaming that the interurban connections between Janesville and Madison and even as far as the Delta of the Wisconsin are a possibility now. In the Madison Journal of Saturday a correspondent announces under an Edgerton date line that the new interurban between Janesville and Madison is a certainty now but that, tried by former disappointments, the citizens are bottling up their enthusiasm for the time at least.

A New Dream. With the engineers for the proposed Janesville-Madison at work inside the corporate limits the Edgerton people now think that there is another road to be built which will be furnished with power from the Delta of the Wisconsin and run direct from Janesville to the Kilbourn City. This road would follow out the lines which were laid down several years ago by P. L. Spooner of Madison who planned for a road from Madison to Janesville via Stoughton, Edgerton and Indian Ford whose power would be furnished by the electricity generated at the great dam at Kilbourn. It will be remembered that he obtained franchises in Stoughton, Edgerton and Janesville and had the Madison franchise in the city line through which he owned.

Supreme Court. The supreme court, however, just at that time made a decision that no one man could have a franchise for an interurban and he dropped the project. Since then Mr. Spooner and others have talked of building a road but financial troubles have prevented. H. H. Zigler, who represents an Ohio syndicate, is the latest to enter the field and with all probability will bring the road not only to a possibility but to a fact with every running of the line of two years.

Zigler's Views. When shown the story in the Madison paper Mr. Zigler said this morning: "We are not prepared to state anything about this proposed road to the Delta." He intimated, however, that he had heard of it and smiled as he said: "You may state we are not committed as to the possibility of our line or where we shall get our power from as yet. Work is progressing nicely but there are many little details to be attended to even before the survey is completed. Mr. Ellis has instructions to complete the work on this line as soon as possible although what he is now doing is in a way merely a preliminary survey and does not indicate our rate as yet."

In Conference. Mr. Zigler and Mr. Ellis left for Chicago this morning at ten thirty to meet with others of the syndicate for a general conference. Mr. Ellis expects to return tonight and begin his work again tomorrow but Edgerton while Mr. Zigler will go east on business appears on Saturday or Monday. That the work will be pushed now appears a certainty although whether the proposed line to Kilbourn is a part of the present project remains to be seen.

HIGHWAY PEOPLE TO AID IN ROAD WORK

Open Letter to Town Chairmen Regarding the Work of the Proposed Road.

The highway division of the Geological Survey advises the farmers of Wisconsin contemplating road and bridge improvement to send in their application for advice and assistance at once. The appropriation for this work is only $10,000. This means that comparatively few of the 1200 communities can be reached. To this enterprising percentage the highway division offers hearty cooperation. The highway division will, upon application, inspect roads which are difficult to maintain and tell how to remedy existing conditions as quickly and cheaply as possible; make practical suggestions for relocation, grading or drainage; examine old bridges and estimate carefully the cost of new ones; in short, assist the farmers of Wisconsin.

To Stop Piles Try This.

Piles get instant relief when Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment is applied. It's a Pile Cure, remember, and it is good for nothing else whatever except piles. General Ointments, for many uses, can't possibly cure piles. A pile ointment must be directed specifically toward piles alone. Says Dr. Shoop, "I make three valuable ointments, and yet, only—Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment will bring help to pile sufferers." Even then, in old chronic cases, originating because of a torpid liver, with biliousness, I prescribe my Dr. Shoop's Restorative internally while using Magic Ointment locally or externally. Keep in mind this fact, please, that the large blood vessels of the liver originate in the walls of the rectum, where piles arise. Obstruct these vessels in the liver and piles instantly appear. Dr. Shoop's Restorative corrects stomach and liver sluggishness, hence its value as an aid to Magic Ointment in the treatment of obstinate cases of piles. None genuine without Dr. Shoop's name on the package. Sold at 50 cents by BADGER DRUG CO.

conish the best possible results at the least possible expense.

This competent advice, practical assistance, and whenever possible (in the case of stone or gravel roads), outfit of road machinery are offered by the highway division upon application entirely free of charge.

The following open letter is sent to the chairman of the different towns by the chief of the highway division:

Dear Sir: The highway division of the Geological Survey is helping many towns to get the best possible roads and bridges for their money. This letter is sent you in order that you may have a clear knowledge of what we can do to help your town along these lines.

In road construction we can assist by making suggestions and surveys for their improvement, relocation, grading or drainage. We will inspect roads which are difficult to maintain and give direction how to remedy conditions as cheaply as possible. If gravel or stone roads are to be built we have a limited number of outfit of road machinery to loan to the towns. The only cost to the town will be the freight on the machinery and the cost of operating it while on the work. It is possible that we may get the railroads to carry machinery and material for these roads which will be built, free of cost. On work built with this machinery we will assist in the supervision in order to assure the best results for the money expended.

In regard to bridges we can also be of assistance. Upon application our engineers will visit the bridge site, make examinations and surveys. If necessary, to determine the character of abutments, span of bridge, sills and depth of foundations. From this information plans and specifications will be prepared and an estimate of the cost furnished you. We will also examine plans furnished by bridge companies and give an estimate of their proper cost.

We will do this for both steel and concrete bridges free of charge for your town, so there is no need of using poor plans. All of this assistance in regard to roads and bridges will be furnished you absolutely free. It was at first thought that town chairmen were so notified; that we would have to charge to the towns traveling expenses incurred in visiting bridges, but it has been found possible to pay this expense out of our state appropriation.

In order to get this help all you need to do is to write in for regular application blank, which will be sent to you by return mail, fill it out and send it in. If you want help this summer it will be well to get your application in soon as we have an appropriation of only $10,000 to do this work for about 1200 towns, and of course can reach only a small percentage of them.

The four pamphlets on roads and bridges which were sent to all chairmen last winter will be forwarded to chairmen who have not yet received them on receipt of a postal card request. These will make clearer our position in regard to road and bridge matters, and the assistance we can offer you.

Trusting we may be of service to you this year, I remain

Very truly yours,

CHIEF OF HIGHWAY DIVISION.

JOSEPH W. BATES SUFFERS NO MORE

Former Janesville Lawyer, Good Citizen, and Good Friend, Died in Beloit Last Evening.

Joseph William Bates, once a lawyer of brilliant intellect and high attainment and even in his more unfortunate days a man whose unique individuality made him one of the best known characters in southern Wisconsin, passed away at Beloit last evening after many months of intense suffering, ending with a severe attack of Bright's disease. He had been totally blind for several weeks and it had long been known to his legion of friends in this locality that there was little or no hope for his recovery. Bates was born at Janesville, July 14, 1852, and was the son of Allen C. and Sarah H. Bates, natives of New York and Maine, and the former a descendant of the early Dutch settlers in this country. Two brothers, Joseph and Edwin of Edgerton, and two sisters, Mrs. L. of Des Moines, Ia., and Mrs. Lottie H. Eaton of Madison, survive him. Allen C. Bates, his father, came to Janesville in 1845 and was one of the leading lawyers here up to the time of his death in 1881. Joseph William Bates was educated at Lawrence and Northwestern universities; was admitted to the bar in 1875; and practiced law in Janesville up to the time of his removal to Beloit in the early 90's.

In 1878 he was a clerk in the state legislature and drafted the bill which changed the name of the Wisconsin state militia to the Wisconsin National Guard. In 1883 he was assistant clerk to the state senate. The Janesville guards elected him judge advocate at the time of their organization. When the Beloit municipal court was created about two years ago he was a candidate against H. H. Toss for the judicial seat. Though defeated, he received a majority over his opponent in his native city.

Epitaph. Many a man who thinks he is mounting the ladder is still a long way from the bottom rung.

WALL PAPER TALK

Use of burlap in decorating.

Canvas or burlap on plaster has a very soothing effect on the color over it and a room so treated is quiet, sedate and self-satisfied in its appearance.

Webster's definition is, "Burlap, a coarse fabric made of jute and hemp and used for bagging. The name is also given to a finer fabric of similar material used for curtains." He does not say what kind of curtains, whether window or portieres, but what he did mean was the theatrical drop curtains. In the definition nothing was said of its use as a wall covering, for its general use as such is of very recent date. But today it is used far more for wall coverings than for drop curtains. Burlap has now become a staple article in the decorator's shop. With it for a background, he produces results impossible on any other surface and its possibilities are unlimited. We have the burlap in all colors and can show you some very attractive combinations.

Yours for correct wall coverings.

LADY COOK STARTS "SCHOOL OF FATHERHOOD."

New York.—Lady Tennessee Cook, who has announced her intention to establish a "school of fatherhood," where boys will be taught to become good fathers. Is the wealthy widow of Sir Francis Cook, who died in 1901. She was formerly Mrs. Tennessee Chaffin and with her sister, Victoria Chaffin Woodhull-Blood, achieved notoriety of an unpleasant sort in her early days through adventuring in lectures the regulation of marriage on so-called scientific principles, and the suppression of population. The two sisters were born in Homer, Ohio, of poor parents, and lived several years in this city. Both were pretty, witty and talented, and began to earn their living as spirit mediums. They went to England early in the sixties, and both married wealthy men there.

RHEUMATISM

BODY RACKED WITH PAIN

No other disease causes such wide-spread suffering as Rheumatism. It is a nerve-racking torture, and so thoroughly does it dominate the system, when it becomes entrenched in the blood, that its victims are usually complete slaves to pain. Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid in the blood brought on by stomach troubles, weak kidneys, indigestion, and a sluggish condition of the system. The natural refuse of the body, instead of passing off through the ordinary channels of waste, is left to sour and ferment in the system because of these irregularities, forming uric acid which is absorbed into the blood, and Rheumatism gets a foothold. As the blood circulates through the body it deposits the acid, irritating substances with which it is saturated, into the different muscles, nerves, tissues and bones. Sharp, biting pains commence, the flesh becomes feverish, swollen and tender, the muscles and joints throb and jerk, and the body is literally racked with pain. Plasters, blisters, liniments, etc., can never cure the disease; they relieve the pain, perhaps temporarily, but do not reach the trouble, which is in the blood. S. S. S. is the proper treatment for Rheumatism. It goes down and attacks the disease at its head, and by driving out the poison and acid fluids which are causing the pain, and strengthening and enriching the blood, cures Rheumatism permanently. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers, just what is needed in every case of Rheumatism. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE events of the next hour were shadowy as the dawn to Elsie. She knew that her lover placed men in each of the canoes, that the lifeboat itself was crowded and that it began the rearward journey after the others had started. They sped out of the twilight into the morning glory of the open bay, and never a savage boat disturbed the echoes. Some of the Alaculofs had dragged a couple of canoes from beneath the trees and raced off toward the village, others had followed a coast path known only to them, while if there were watchers by the side of that mysterious river which flowed both ways with the tide they kept a silent vigil, aided by the force arrayed against them.

As the lifeboat emerged into the estuary under the vigorous sweep of six ash blades Elsie's wondering glance rested on the brown plumpness of a girl who was gazing at Suarez with wistful, glancing eyes, much as Joey was regarding his master.

Courtenay caught the happy little sigh, half laugh, half sob, with which Elsie announced her discovery of the girl in the canoe.

"We owe a lot to that young person," he said. "None of us could make out a word she uttered when first we saw her. She looks like a small innocent of Spanish blood, but she speaks when she becomes excited, and it was sheer good fortune that some of the crew were with her when she swung herself down the side of the cliff to warn us of our danger; otherwise she might have been shot. I suppose Suarez told you what to expect?"

"You might as well be talking Alacul of yourself for all I can follow what you are saying," murmured Elsie happily.

Whereupon Courtenay took thought and explained that the channel which flowed through that amazing cliff in the cliff led to the crater of an extinct volcano, into which the sea poured twenty feet of water each tide. An almost everlasting miststream raged within, the water entered by a side-long channel and sent a whirlpool splashing with the hands of the clock until the enormous cistern was full and against them until it was empty. The sailors had taken refuge on a wide, sulphur coated ledge high above the vortex, and the presence of several skeletons showed that many an unfortunate had sought a last shelter there against pursuit. Every Alaculof knew of this retreat, but few dared approach it, as the roar of the water far below appalled them. There was only one path. When the hunters closed that their prey was safe. The alternative to capture was death by starvation. The Chilcans and he himself during the past fourteen hours had subsisted on a bag of dried berries stolen by the girl when she first led the sailors thither.

"Didn't you see how eager we all were to search the lockers?" he asked. "But the morsels had clattered every scrap when the boat fell into their hands again with the falling tide."

She nestled close to him. "I saw nothing," she whispered. "My mind held but one thought—that you were alive, though indeed I was mourning you as dead. But now I am restored to my senses. I think I can guess what happened. Did Joey die?"

"Yes. You can guess my bewilderment when he sprang on top of me. I was lying down. I heard our sentries shouting, but paid no heed. As a matter of fact, Elsie, I too, had abandoned hope. I could see no chance of escape. Great heaven! What you coming to my rescue? Think made you do it?"

"Please go on. Tell me all. You shall hear my story afterward."

"Well, I jumped up, and Joey nearly fell into the crater with delight. I was just in time to save Suarez from being shot. Luckily he was a long way behind the dog, and I recognized his knock."

"Thank Courtenay did not allow ten seconds to pass without a glance at the charming face by his side, he nevertheless had a sharp eye for events elsewhere. He saw smoke rising from the funnel of the ship. A line of flags dancing from the forest told him that Boyle had discovered them as soon as they were clear of the deep shadow of Guano Hill. But there were anxious moments yet in store. A fleet of canoes put off from Otter Creek. There was every prospect of a fight before they reached their fortress. They had a long two miles to travel, and the Indians could attack them ere they covered half the distance.

A long bare from the ship's stern thrilled their hearts, but the excitement became frantic when three short, sharp blasts followed, and every sailor knew that the chief officer had signalled, "My engines are going full speed astern."

"That was a pandemonium excitation, but the Kansas was certainly moving. They could see the white foam churned up by her propeller. With one accord they cheered madly, and the ears, double handed now, tore the lifeboat outward at a pace which outstripped even the shallow canoes. Then the Indians did a wise thing. They spared many of their own lives and perished others of greater value to the world by coming to public. The unlooked for interference of the great vessel was too much for them. They merely stared and cowered in amaze, while the small flotilla dashed toward the towering black hull, and to the lowered gangway in readiness to receive the captain, his bride elect and a good half of the passengers and crew.

Courtenay lost not an instant of favoring tide and fine weather. When Boyle told him that Walker could work the engines under easy steam, he dashed up to the bridge three steps at a time. With his hand on the telegraph he superintended the hoisting on board of the lifeboat and two of the canoes, which he meant to carry away as trophies—he was sure that Elsie's own special craft was one of them. Meanwhile Boyle saw to the safe stowing in the remaining canoes of the wounded Indians in the fore cabin, and a few furore bars attached to a rope anchored them in midchannel, whence their friends could bring them to shore later.

At last the captain of the Kansas had the supreme satisfaction of hearing the clang of the electric bell in the engine room as he put the telegraph lever successively to "Stand by" and "Slow ahead." Gradually the ship crept north, gaining way as the engines increased their stroke and the full body of the old tide made its volume felt. Round swung the Kansas to the west just as the sun cleared the highest peak of the unknown mountains. How good it was to feel the steady thrust of the pistons, the long roll of the ship over the swell!

But best of all was it to hear Elsie tell how Dr. Christobal had handed her a bulky packet, in which a found Courtenay's words of farewell, together with those wonderful letters which fate had held back from her twice already. They were only glowing epistles from the hundreds of passengers on the Florida, but six of them were proposals from enthusiastic ladies, all well dowered and eager to give their charms and their cash to the safe keeping of the man who had saved their lives. It was with reference to some joking comment by Courtenay on these proposals that his sister wrote to congratulate him on having escaped matrimony under such conditions.

Long before noon the Kansas cleared White Horse Island. Thenceforth the run was due south until eight bells, when for the second time within a fortnight the captain set the course south-by-east.

Elsie noted that Count Edmond de Polneville dined with the rest, sitting beside Isabel. Courtenay put in an ap-

"My engines are going full speed astern," he said. "I never told you he asked me to marry him," she said. "It would have been just the same had he done so. As it was, I feared the man. Now you know why I ran away from Chile. If I permitted another impression to prevail, I acted for the best. But the unhappy man is dead. Let us endeavor to forget him."

"His memory haunts me with an enduring curse," cried Isabel bitterly. "Among my papers I had some letters of his, the marriage certificate and his written promise not to molest me. On that awful night when the ship was disabled I went to my cabin and secured them, or thought I did. At any rate, I could not find them when we landed on White Horse Island, and from hints dropped by that wretched little adventurer De Polneville I feel sure they have fallen into his hands. Believe me, Elsie, I was half mad when I helped him to steal the boat."

execute the needed repairs at Sanay point, Courtenay decided to make for Montevideo, where he would be in telegraphic communication with Mr. Barling. He was fortunate in finding a shipwrecked crew on shore awaiting transport to England. He secured a full complement of officers and engineers, and the Kansas reached the chief port of Uruguay without any difficulty.

A sack load of telegrams awaited the ship. The Chilean man-of-war put into Valparaiso, after calling at Coronel, nearly three days before the Kansas dropped anchor on the east coast; hence there was time for things to happen, and they seized the opportunity. The copper market had turned itself inside out. The firm of Barling, Thompson, Miguel & Co. had rebounded from comparative ruin to a stronger financial state than ever, and Senator Pedro Ventana, after shooting a man named Jose Amaleto, had considerably shot himself. Evidently Francisco lost no time when he went ashore. Mr. Barling, too, reported that the dynamite wrapper had been traced to Ventana's possession.

When Isabel Barling heard this final item she felt so badly that Dr. Christobal thought it advisable she should be taken to a hotel while the ship remained in port, but she vetoed this proposal determinedly when she recovered her senses and straightway confessed to Elsie that Ventana was her husband. She had foolishly agreed to marry him privately, and Amaleto had witnessed the ceremony. Within a month she regretted her choice. There were quarrels and threats. Ultimately an agreement was made that they should separate. Her father knew and approved of the arrangement. He could not afford to break openly with Ventana, and it must have been a dreadful shock to him when he learned that the scoundrel had plotted not only to destroy the ship, but to murder his wife at the same time.

"So, you see," she added, with a wan smile, "I did not give serious thought to your troubles, Elsie. Ventana could never have married you while I was alive."

Elsie's cheeks reddened. "I never told you he asked me to marry him," she said. "It would have been just the same had he done so. As it was, I feared the man. Now you know why I ran away from Chile. If I permitted another impression to prevail, I acted for the best. But the unhappy man is dead. Let us endeavor to forget him."

"That not Captain Courtenay's told you?"

"Not a word."

"Ah, he is a true gentleman. But you forget. You heard what he said to De Polneville before he went to the Guano canyon?"

"Yes, I did not understand. Oh, my poor Isabel, how you must have suffered, while I have been so happy!"

probably a defaulting valet of Elsie. No one troubled to inquire further about him. His passage money was refunded, and he was banded ashore. Courtenay's view was that he had heard by some means of Isabel's intended departure from Valparaiso and deemed it good chance of winning her approval of his courtship, seeing that such things are not subjected to serious investigation in South America. Suarez took his Pagan bride up country, where Mr. Barling and Dr. Christobal established them on a small ranch.

Isabel renewed her voyage somewhat chastened in spirit, but her volition nature soon survived the shocks it had received. By the time the Kansas put her ashore at Tibury, to be clasped in the arms of a timid and fearful man, she was ready as ever for the campaign of glory she had mapped out in London and Paris.

Captain Courtenay, R. N., and his wife are not such disinterested persons, but their romance had a second worthy of its unusual beginning. They were married quietly a week after the Kansas reached London. There was some war scare in full blast at the moment, and a lord of the admiralty who declined to read the newspapers thought it was a pity that a smart sailor should not risk his life for his country rather than in behalf of commerce. So he looked up Courtenay's record and found that it was excellent, the young lieutenant was excellent for resigning his commission being the necessity of supporting his mother when her estate was swept away by a bank failure. The sea lords made him a first rate offer of reinstatement in the service at a higher rank without any loss of seniority, and they went about the business with such dignified leisure that Dr. Christobal had time to find out, through men whom he could trust, that Elsie's small estate in Chile contained one of the richest mines in the country. He secured a bid of many thousands of pounds for it and advised Mrs. Courtenay to accept half in cash and half in shares of the exploiting company.

It was not unreasonable that Gray should go back to Chile to take charge of Elsie's mine, for that Mr. Boyle should become captain and Walker chief engineer of the Kansas, while Tollenbach settled down in England.

Diet for the Tuberculous.

The diet prescribed for tuberculous sufferers is plenty of pure milk—the patient can drink, or what is usually more to the point, all he can afford, and six eggs a day. According to the doctors it doesn't matter about the status of the egg, so long as it has not commenced to "spoil."
